Allison Ruby

Allison Ruby, Merck community liaison, presented Health Care Disparities Highlighted by the COVID-19 Pandemic. The presentation noted the how both minority populations and people experiencing poverty were disproportionately negatively impacted by COVID-19. Particularly in the pre-vaccine days, the number of hospitalizations and deaths among African-Americans was disproportionately high compared to the population numbers. The presentation noted specific challenges for people with HIV in both preventing and treating COVID-19. The presentation also described efforts to bring COVID-19 awareness and access to treatment to as many people as possible, noting that if you don't know about available services, those services are not really available to you. Also highlighted was the overwhelming volume of information and misinformation and the difficulties of navigating an "info-demic." Members thanked Ms. Ruby for her presentation.

"I am a Work of ART" Campaign Materials

Overview

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), developed the "I am a Work of ART" national viral suppression campaign as part of the Ending the HIV Epidemic in the U.S. \(EHE\) Initiative. This campaign supports the EHE key pillar: "Treat people with HIV rapidly and effectively to reach sustained viral suppression."

Campaign Development

Using a co-creation approach, HHS engaged traditional and nontraditional HIV stakeholders and people with HIV in eight EHE priority jurisdictions across the U.S. to develop "I am a Work of ART." Campaign materials feature a diverse group of people with HIV, who share personal stories about getting into care and using antiretroviral therapy \(ART\) to achieve viral suppression.
